STEP EIGHT:

Now start browsing. There are three ways you can look for a magazine.

- 1) Search by title. A full alphabetical list will appear once you place your cursor in the box. You can also type in a letter and it will automatically reveal titles listed under that letter.
- 2) Filter your magazines by subject or genre using the drop-down menu on the right side of the screen.
- 3) Toggle between the search results numbers on the right side to show the next page of magazine covers.

Three Ways to Search

RBdigital Gateway > Zinio Magazine Collection

To checkout a magazine to your Zinio account, simply click on the magazine of your choice.

STEP NINE:

Once you find a magazine that you would like to read, click on the cover. A window will appear showing the magazine you selected. The window also informs you that you will be redirected to Zinio.com after you complete your checkout.

-If this is not the title you want, click cancel and browse some more.

-If this is the title you want, click "Complete Checkout"

STEP TEN:

Now you will have to create an account with Zinio.com.

Why the two accounts?

The first Zinio account is creating your library account/profile through your library in order to check out magazines. The library account also only shows what magazines the library has subscribed to in order for their patrons to check out.

The second Zinio account is your account through the Zinio website which provides you the mechanism to read the magazine.

A screenshot of the Zinio.com registration page. On the left is a thumbnail of the Audubon magazine cover. To the right, the text reads: 'Pick up your digital subscription to Connecting People with Nature'. Below this, there are two sections. The first section is for new users: 'New to Zinio? Please register to set up your digital magazine delivery.' It includes a 'sign in here' link. The second section is for existing users: 'If you already have an account, sign in here'. Both sections have input fields for 'First Name', 'Last Name', 'Email Address', 'Password', and 'Confirm Password'. The 'Email Address' field is pre-filled with 'tobietestpatron@email.com'. At the bottom, there is a checkbox for 'Send me email updates about features, new products, and special offers from Zinio and its publishers.' and a line of text stating 'By clicking "Join", you agree to Zinio's Terms of Service and Privacy Policy.' A blue 'REGISTER' button is located at the bottom right.

Just as you did in the previous form:

- Type your first name in the “First Name” box
- Type your last name in the “Last Name” box
- Your email address should already display in the box for you
- Type the same password you chose earlier so you don’t have to remember two different passwords in the “Password” box
- Type that password again in the “Confirm Password” box

When you open your magazine, a window will appear with tips that will help you use the reading pane. If you don't need the help tips you can simply click the "x" on the upper right corner of the box. If you don't want the box to return at start up, uncheck "show tips at startup" box before closing.

TURNING PAGES

There are two ways to turn the page.

Option 1: Hover over either side of the magazine until you see a gray bar appear. Click on the gray bar to turn the page.

THUMBNAIL VIEWER

Click on the tab with the small arrow below the magazine to reveal the thumbnail viewer across the bottom of the reading pane. Click on any of the images to choose the page you wish to read. Use the left or right arrows to scroll to see more. To close the thumbnail view, click the arrow tab again.

THUMBNAIL GRID

Click on the button containing multiple squares in order to toggle the thumbnail grid. Click on any of the images to open the page you wish to read. If you want to close the panel, click the "x" on the upper right corner.

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Click on the "Table of Contents" symbol in order to display the table of contents page. Clicking on the title of the articles in the table of contents will take you to the article.

ZOOMING

Click on the magnifying glass symbol to display the zoom panel. Use the slider bar or the plus and minus magnifying glass icons to zoom in and out. You can also click on the magazine page to zoom in.

FULL SCREEN MODE

Click on “full screen mode” icon to expand the reading pane to the size of your monitor. To exit “Full screen mode,” simply press the ESC button on your keyboard.

8 GREAT SUMMER BIRDING TRAILS

Right now many binocular-toting vacationers are hitting the road to seek out birds. Special routes, towns and rural outposts are also connecting the dots between many important Bird Areas.

called Birding Trails, provide roadmaps for unforgettable trips that went through charming Here are some of the nation's top trails you'll want to explore this season. By Kenn Kaufman

Maine Birding Trail

From waves lapping a rocky coastline to magnificent evergreen forests, Maine is a nature lover's perfect getaway. Within these varied landscapes, there are sites for spectacular summer birding scattered all over the state—if you know where to look. The Maine Birding Trail is divided into eight regional sections. Explore the coastal segments to see common eiders, black guillemots, and offshore islands spotted with Atlantic puffins and Arctic terns. On forest trails, Blackburnian warblers sing and spruce grouse lurk in the shadows. In secluded bogs, olive-sided flycatchers perch like sentinels on the highest snags. Special tours and festivals feature some of the trail's highlights and the chance to compare notes with fellow travelers.

North Carolina Birding Trail

From a birder's standpoint, North Carolina is not one state but three. In the mountainous western corner, in the upper Appalachians, you'll find birds typical of more northern regions in summer, such as ruffed grouse, Canada warblers, and black-throated blue warblers. Forests in the Piedmont's flat plateau are alive with birdsongs from Acadian flycatchers, summer tanagers, yellow-throated vireos, and wood thrush. In the eastern section, great salt marshes along the bays support rails and herons, while Outer Banks beaches provide nesting sites for American oystercatchers and Wilson's plovers.

Pine to Prairie Birding Trail

In northwestern Minnesota, where the great eastern forest converges with the Great Plains, a dazzling variety of birds nest this time of year. On the open prairies, golden-crowned kinglets and chestnut-collared longspurs flutter over the grass, singing their flight songs. In the deciduous forest, just east of the prairies, mornings ring with calls from pileated woodpeckers, scarlet tanagers, and rose-breasted grosbeaks. The evergreen forest harbors an avian mélange that includes northern goshawks and boreal chickadees. Common loons wall from every lake at night. More than 20 warbler species nest in the region, among them such sought-after beauties as the golden-winged warbler and the Connecticut warbler.

Far West Texas Wildlife Trail

West Texas's wide vistas hold endless surprises for the summer visitor. Stretches of open desert might seem barren when you see them for the first time, but explore a little further and you'll cross paths with greater roadrunners, pyrrhuloxias, and a host of other birds thriving in these arid lands. This wildlife trail will guide you to hidden oases rich with life—to canyons, streams, and mountains with their own blend of unique birds, including two national parks. In Guadalupe Mountains National Park, there are birds reminiscent of the Rockies, such as broad-tailed hummingbirds and western bluebirds. Follow the trail to Big Bend's upper elevations to find the rare Collared sparrowhawk.

More information: twtrails.com

Colorado Birding Trail

The hardest thing about birding in Colorado is the distracting scenery. This trail will help you manage that delightful problem. In the state's rugged southwestern quadrant, it leads you to Mesa Verde National Park. There just-per-timely chatter in the woods and white-throated swifts zoom overhead. Among the Rockies' peaks you can hear Townsend's solitaires singing in the forests, or head to high elevations for specialties like the brown-capped rosy-finch or white-tailed ptarmigan. East of the mountains on the sweeping short-grass plains are the meadowlark, mountain plover and other prairie birds, including Colorado's show-stealing state bird, the lark bunting. The trail connects nearly 220 sites, including designated Important Bird Areas.

More information: coloradobirdingtrail.com

Idaho Birding Trail

Idaho may not be a famous birding destination yet, but it should be. Explore this trail's four sections and you'll enjoy enough sites and birds to keep you fascinated all summer long. Marshes and lakes in the southeastern quadrant support nesting sandhill cranes, Franklin's gulls, and white-faced ibises. The southwestern section includes the Snake River Canyon, a nationalIBA and breeding territory for prairie falcons, golden eagles, and other raptors. In the east-central and northern regions' forests, there are plenty of chestnut-backed chickadees, Townsend's warblers, Cassin's vireos, and others. River groves host colonies of lazily colored Lewis's woodpeckers, while sky-blue mountain bluebirds hover over the meadows.

Central Coast Birding Trail

Halfway between bustling Los Angeles and San Francisco, California's stunning central coast is tranquil and filled with birds. This trail, sketched by Audubon California, highlights 85 top sites in four coastal counties (Monterey, San Luis Obispo, Santa Barbara, and Ventura), including eight Globally Important Bird Areas. At rocky points along the shore, you'll see black oystercatchers, pigeon guillemots, and other Pacific Coast specialties. The chaparral in the lowlands and canyons shelters California quail, wrentits, California towhees, and more. Interior valleys on the east side of the coastal hills are home to the hairy yellow-billed magpie. With some effort and luck, you may see the endangered California condor, which has been reintroduced in this region.

More information: ccbt.org

Klamath Basin Birding Trail

This basin straddling the California-Oregon border contains abundant lakes and marshes protected by a network of National Wildlife Refuges. When there's enough water, tens of thousands of waterfowl, including cinnamon teal, gadwall, rusty ducks, and mallards, linger through the summer to nest and raise their young. But the ducks are upstaged by western grebes performing their crazy high-speed courtship displays across the water surface. Continue on the birding trail and you'll also find forests haunted by Cassin's finches, fox sparrows, and varied thrushes. The peak is Crater Lake National Park, you'll have to bear yourself away from the vista to look at Clark's nutcrackers and other birds.
